High School Happenings.

A few evenings ago an excellent program was rendered in the assembly hall of the Central, under the supervision of Miss Reynolds and Mr. Murray. The first was a selection by the chorus, "Dream, Baby, Dream," followed by a vivid rendition of "Briar Rose," by Miss Michael. Mr. Finkle then favored the audience with some of his most beautiful selections, with some of his most beautiful selections, which deservedly received a hearty encore. Mr. Hanford gave most excellently his version of Cassius' speech against Cæsar. Miss Simons and Miss Blasland rendered two touching and well-appreciated solos, closing with a delightful cornet solo by Mr. Tracy.

One of the most delightful meetings of the Philadethes was held at the horse of Miss Rose.

One of the most delightful meetings of the Philaiethea was held at the home of Miss Rose a few evenings ago. The young ladies wore fancy costumes which added to the brilliancy of the occasion, and after the business meeting—which consisted principally of electing the following officers: President, Mr. Brown; vice president, Miss Chandler; secretary, Miss Appleby—was over the young gentlemen retired to mask. Dancing soon commenced and after the first waltz sheets and masks were laid aside in order that the luster of High School beauty and shoulder straps should no longer be obscured. At 11 o'clock a repast was served by the charming hostess.

A Marvel in Needlework.
Temarkable specimen of needlework will form a part of the exhibit of the merchant tailors at Chicago. It is the result of the wonderful patience and skill of a Washington tailor, derful patience and skill of a Washington tailor, Mr. E. Bosco. By working at odd times during the past eight years Mr. Bosco has completed a table cloth fifty-three inches square. It is made of about 6,000 pieces of broadcloth of various colors, and the design, which is of a geometric pattern, is very effective. Some of the pieces are almost minute and yet the stitches have been taken with such care and skill that they can hardly be detected. The nape of the cloth is uniform throughout. The composition and the details are so complete that the work is looked upon as the most remarkable specimen of the kind in existence. It will be exhibited in a glass case, which will show both sides.
